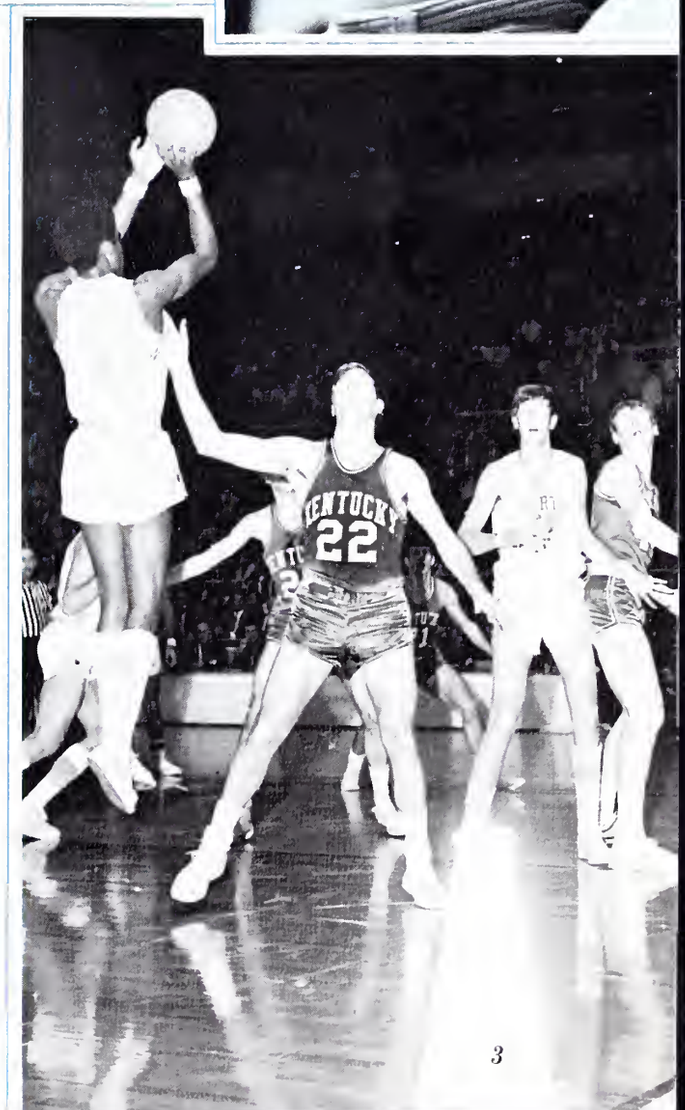
This is CAROLINA BASKETBALL



Carolina Basketball Tradition

Nothing could be finer than basketball at Carolina!

And if you don't believe it, just take a look at these facts and figures:

The Tar Heels became the first team in history to win three consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference regular season and tournament championships (1967-68-69).

Carolina became the first team in history to sweep the Eastern Regional NCAA championship three years in a row (1967-68-69).

The Tar Heels last year took part in a post-season tournament for the fourth consecutive year, competing in the National Invitational at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Carolina teams have swept 26 basketball championships in 60 years of intercollegiate competition.

Those are just a few of the achievements which have made Carolina basketball so big-time and have placed the Tar Heels among the big names of the college game.

In 60 years of cage competition, Tar Heel teams have won a total of 954 games while losing only 413. Fifty of the school's 60 teams have posted winning records. There has been only one team with a losing record in the past 15 years.

Twice—in 1924 and 1957—the Tar Heels won the national championship. Teams in 1967, 1968 and 1969 threatened to do it again, going all the way to the final four. The 1968 team lost to UCLA in the National Championship game while the 1967 and 1969 teams lost in the semifinals.

Carolina basketball hit a new peak the past four years under Coach Dean Smith. Those great teams compiled an overall record of 99 victories and only 24 defeats—an unbelieveable mark.

That's a yearly average of 25-6.

In Atlantic Coast Conference play, the four-year record is 54 wins and only 12 defeats. And perhaps even more amazing is the fact that the Tar Heels have beaten their tough Big Four rivals—N. C. State, Wake Forest and Duke—26 times in the past 31 games.

Last year, the Tar Heels toppled North Carolina State twice and the Wolfpack went on to win the league championship.

Basketball always has been a boom sport at Carolina and the crowds which turn out for the games are proof of the popularity of the sport.

Every home game in Carmichael Auditorium is a sellout. Students sleep in Carmichael the night before the tickets go on sale to assure themselves of getting a ticket.

The beautiful Carolina gymnasium, called "Blue Heaven" seats 8,800 and is regarded as one of the most comfortable arenas to be found anywhere.

Carolina teams play big-name foes. In fact, the Tar Heel schedule has been rated one of the 10 toughest in America three of the past four years. Carolina travels from coast-to-coast, meeting such perennial powers as UCLA, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Ohio State, Purdue, Utah, Princeton, Indiana, Villanova, St. John's, Duquesne and Georgia Tech. But nowhere is the competition tougher than in Carolina's Atlantic Coast Conference. The teams in that powerful league are Wake Forest, Virginia, South Carolina, Clemson, Maryland, North Carolina State, Duke and Carolina.

The Tar Heels have produced many of the big-name players in college basketball. The current crop of professionals who played at Carolina are Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, Charlie Scott of the Virginia Squires, Larry Brown of the Virginia Squires, Doug Moe of the Virginia Squires, Larry Miller of the Carolina Cougars, Bob Lewis of the Cleveland Cavaliers, and Bill Bunting of the New York Nets.

Yes sir, basketball on The Hill is really big-time. And we're just getting warmed up.

Carlyle Sitterson
Chancellor

In this final year of J. Carlyle Sitterson's term as Chancellor of the University of North Carolina, he will spend a lot of winter nights in a familiar role—cheering the Tar Heel basketball team.

A knowledgeable and enthusiastic basketball fan, Chancellor Sitterson has followed Tar Heel sports since his undergraduate days here in 1927.

The Chancellor announced in July that he is leaving the Chancellorship, effective Sept. 1, 1971, a post which he has held since Feb. 1966. Tar Heels everywhere are delighted that he will remain on campus as a Kenan Professor of History.

He is an inspiring and enthusiastic teacher. In 1954, the campus literary magazine, The Carolina Quarterly, identified him as one of the "Ten Outstanding Professors" as adjudged by the students of the University.

The Chancellor is very close to Carolina Basketball Coach Dean Smith. Dr. Sitterson drops by the Tar Heel dressing room after every big home game and usually has a long chat with the coach.

"The Chancellor is quite knowledgeable on the game," says Coach Smith. "We certainly appreciate the support he has given our program."

Chancellor Sitterson has an approach to college athletics that is basic and understandable. "I look at our Athletic Department in the same manner I might look at our English or History Department," he says. "I expect excellence in all University programs. Athletics on the college level should be administered properly and above reproach. Our coaches are highly capable men. Our teams should perform accordingly."

Chancellor Sitterson has been a part of the Carolina scene since 1927—a total of 44 years. He enrolled here as a student in 1927 and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He received the M.A. degree here in 1932 and the Ph.D. degree in 1937. He has been a member of the University faculty since 1935. He is the author of several books in his chosen field of American history.

His accomplishments in the field of education are many and varied. He is listed in: Who's Who In America; Who's Who In the South; Who Knows What; and the Directory of American Scholars.

He recently received the Doctor of Literature degree from The University of Chattanooga.

Dr. Sitterson is a member of the National Association of Allergies and Infectious Disease Council, National Institute of Health, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, serves on committees of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, and of the Southern Historical Association.

He was elected by his colleagues to be Chairman of the American Conference of Academic Deans in the years 1964 and 1965. It is one of the highest academic offices that can be held by a scholar and administrator in higher education in the United States.

Dr. Sitterson was chosen in 1958 to be one of the 35 deans from throughout the nation to attend the Harvard University Institute for College and University administrators, participating in a week-long discussion on faculty recruitment, faculty promotion, curriculum planning, budget policy and the decision-making functions of the academic dean.

Chancellor Sitterson formerly was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Dean of the General College here. He served in those capacities until 1965 when he was made Vice Chancellor of the University with authority over the central campus and also the schools in the Health Affairs area, which includes Medical School, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy and Public Health.

Homer Rice
Director of Athletics

Homer Rice, who revolutionized football offenses with the triple option, is working a different kind of magic now as director of athletics at the University of North Carolina.

In less than two years since he swapped coaching at the University of Cincinnati for administration at Chapel Hill, Rice has learned the folkways and byways of varsity sports at Carolina and along the way has revitalized, if not revolutionized, the athletic facilities here.

Over the past year and a half he has brought about 18 additions and improvements to facilities, has added a varsity sport to the program and in general has taken steps to insure a bright future for Tar Heel athletics.

Homer Rice has managed to do all this with administrative style that is possibly unique among athletic directors. He rarely raises his voice, except to cheer Tar Heel teams. He delegates authority readily, and his art of getting things done is one of friendly persuasion rather than driving aggression. Those working with the athletic director have responded warmly and effectively to this approach.

The score to date under Rice's direction:

1. Installation of a new scoreboard at Kenan Stadium; 2. Completion of a lighting project for the baseball field; 3. Painting of Kenan Field House; 4. Renovation of the basketball dressing rooms; 5. Installation of an all-weather track; 6. Installation of additional scoreboards in Carmichael Auditorium; 7. Initiation of plans for the construction of permanent seats at the baseball field; 8. Renovation of the basketball coaching offices; 9. Construction of an addition to the Finley Club House; 10. Paving of the Rams Club patio; 11. Installation of new single standard football goalposts; 12. Replacement of the old barbecue stand at Kenan Stadium with a new mobile unit; 13. Addition of steps to the south entrance at Carmichael Auditorium; 14. Paving of the small parking lot in front of the Fetzer Field House; 15. Landscaping in Kenan Stadium and construction of a new concession stand there; 16. Cleaning and painting the interior of the press box and guest box; 17. Placement of steps at Stadium parking lot; 18. Regrading and paving the ramp in the stadium parking lot.

Rice really is just getting warmed up. He has plans for many other improvements and additions to the facilities.

Since Rice became the Carolina athletic chief Jan. 27, 1969, gymnastics has been added as a varsity sport, giving the University a 14-sport program. "That is the biggest program in the Atlantic Coast Conference," he says, "and one of the largest in the nation."

Rice feels it is vitally important to maintain a good sports program. "More so to day than ever before," he says. "Athletics is one part of our society where we teach discipline and I think that's very important. We are vitally concerned with how our young people turn out. That is how we will measure our success—by the quality of the young people who participate in our program."

Rice, 43, is the third man to head the Carolina athletic program in 48 years. The late Coach Bob Fetzer was the first, serving from 1922 until 1951; and he was suceeded by Chuck Erickson who held the position until his retirement in May, 1968.

A native of Ft. Thomas, Ky., Rice is the son of a Methodist minister.

After serving with the Navy in the Pacific in World War II, he attended school at Centre College and made the little All-American team as a quarterback. He received an A.B. degree from Centre and a B.S. and M.E. degree from Eastern Kentucky State College.

Following his graduation from college, Rice played three seasons of baseball with the old Brooklyn Dodger chain. Then be began his career as a football coach.

He coached at Wartburg Central High in Tennessee, Spring City High in Tennessee and Highlands High at Ft. Thimas, Ky. In 1961, he received an award as the "Winningest Football Coach in America." His fantastic high school coaching record was 101 wins, nine losses and seven ties.

Rice then was an assistant coach at the University of Kentucky and the University of Oklahoma before landing the head job at Cincinnati. The 1968 Cincinnati team was so explosive that he led the nation in pass offense.

Rice has authored two books on football. The first, "How to Organize Football Practice," was published in 1962 and the other "The Explosive Short T" was published in 1963.

Rice is married to the former Phyllis Wardrup of Middlesboro, Ky., an alumna of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. They have three daughters. Nancy, 19; Phyllis, 17; and Angela, 14.

DEAN SMITH

UNC Basketball Coach

The winningest coach in Carolina basketball history! That's another in a long line of achievements for dynamic Dean Smith who ranks as one of the key figures in the college game.

In nine years at the Carolina helm, Smith has guided the Tar Heels to 165 wins against only 69 defeats. That tops the mark posted by Frank McGuire (164 wins, 58 losses) in his nine-year stint in Chapel Hill.

But the record tells only part of the story. Smith's very presence on the court seems to spell excitement. His Carolina teams have produced players of extraordinary ability and many of the games they have played have made headlines coast to coast.

In the past four years alone, Smith's Carolina teams have won 99 games while losing only 24. That's a yearly average of 25-6 and brother, that's some trick.

In the years 1967, 1968 and 1969, Smith's Tar Heels won an unprecedented three straight Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern Regional championships. Last year's team posted an 18-9 record and earned a bid to the National Invitational Tournament in New York.

Smith's 1968 team finished second in the nation behind UCLA while his 1967 and 1969 teams were fourth in the NCAA Tournament. All three of those teams were ranked in the top four in final national polls.

The amazing thing is that Smith overcame giant obstacles to attain this kind of success at Carolina. He inherited a sagging basketball program here when he became head coach in 1962. The Tar Heels were stymied by penalties that year which limited the school to a 16-game schedule and placed serious restrictions on recruiting outside the state of North Carolina.

Smith rolled up his sleeves and went to work. He recruited such great players as Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Charlie Scott.

And the pieces fit. And the Tar Heels won.

Dean Smith came all the way from Kansas to gain national fame in the little town of Chapel Hill. A native of Emporia, Kans., he attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there.

Dean was an assistant coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when he was brought to Carolina by McGuire. When McGuire left Carolina in 1961 to join the professional ranks, Smith was named the head coach.

His first team, caught with mediocre talent, had an 8-9 record, the only losing mark of his career. Carolina was 15-6 in 1963, 12-12 in 1964, 15-9 in 1965, 16-11 in 1966, 26-6 in 1967, 28-4 in 1968, 27-5 in 1969 and 18-9 last campaign.

Smith, 39, is considered one of the game's great strategists. He spent part of this past summer lecturing at clinics in Europe on a tour sponsored by the U. S. State Department.

He is a member of the National Rules Committee and was the youngest coach ever named to that group.

Smith makes literally hundreds of speeches each year. He is much in demand for clinics and seminars. He also is on the advisory board for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Smith has developed a keen interest in theology and reads every book he can find on the subject. He often takes time out from his hectic schedule to have lunch or dinner with religion professors on campus and he finds their conversation stimulating.

In his spare time, Smith plays golf and tennis, spins records and reads books. He is a fine golfer and can shoot in the high 70s without much practice. He doesn't play tennis as often, but is highly competitive in the sport.

Smith's summer basketball camp at Carolina is one of the best of its kind in the United States. It has attracted capacity enrollment every year since he has been head coach.

Many of his former players, stars like Billy Cunningham, Doug Moe and Larry Brown of the pro ranks, come back to Chapel Hill each summer to lecture at his camp. All of Smith's former players remain very close to him after graduation. Almost daily, you can spot a former player dropping by the coach's office for a chat.

Smith has a lovely family. His wife, Ann, is one of Chapel Hill's leading citizens and a lovely hostess when friends drop by the Smith home. They have three children, Sharon, 15; Sandra, 14; and Scott, 12.

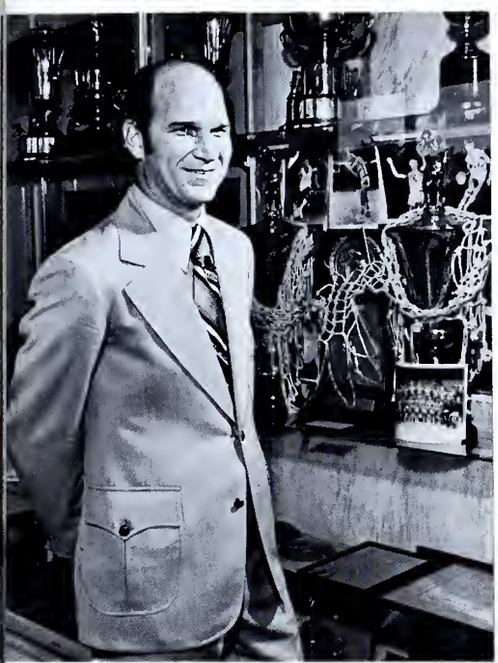
Coach Smith gets cake after becoming Carolina's top winning coach of all time



John Lotz

Assistant Basketball Coach

A shooting whiz in his college basketball days, John Lotz now teaches the finest techniques of the game to Tar Heel players in his role as a Carolina assistant coach.

Largely because of Lotz's expert instruction, Carolina teams have demonstrated fine marksmanship in recent years, finishing among the nation's leaders in field goal percentage.

One of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic family, Lotz is set to start his sixth year as a member of Dean Smith's staff. He and Bill Guthridge will be co-assistants under Smith.

Lotz is a winner and has the record to prove it. In his five years at Carolina, Tar Heel teams have compiled an amazing record of 115 wins and only 35 defeats.

"John is one of the game's finest young coaches," says Smith. "I think I have the finest staff in America."

The 35-year-old Lotz played his college ball at East Texas State. He also attended Baylor University, but did not play basketball there.

A native of New York City, John began his coaching career at a high school in Norwich, N. Y. His team there won 15 games after having won only one the previous season. The next year, Lotz moved to a new high school in Long Island, Massapequa. The first senior class there won the South Shore Championship under Lotz's direction.

Lotz is a man on the move 365 days a year. When the basketball season ends, he hits the road on recruiting missions. He ranks as one of the finest in the country in this department.

John has a great reputation in our community. "This is a great place to live," he says. "I can't begin to tell you how happy I am here."

Lotz is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and makes numerous speeches to groups of that organization. In fact, he is much in demand for public speeches at many functions.

A bachelor, John is the brother of Danny Lotz, who played on Carolina's 1957 National Championship team. He is proud of Danny's infant son and spends a good deal of time with the youngster.

Carolina fans sometimes refer to Bill Guthridge as a "miracle-worker" and the popular Tar Heel assistant coach may well deserve that tag.

In three years as the UNC freshman coach, Guthridge has compiled an amazing record of 28 victories against only 12 losses. His first two teams were Big Four champions, despite the fact his initial squad had only three scholarship players.

Last year's team had only two scholarship athletes and both of them missed the last half of the season due to injuries. Still Guthridge piloted his non-recruited team to victories over talented freshman squads from N. C. State, Wake Forest and Davidson.

The 32-year-old Guthridge will serve as freshman coach again this year and will continue his work as a varsity assistant coach. In Guthridge's three years of work with the varsity, the Tar Heels have twice swept Atlantic Coast Conference and NCAA Eastern championships and last year were invited to the NIT.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Bill was a starting guard at Kansas State during the years it reigned as Big Eight champion—1958, 1959 and 1960. Following his graduation in 1960 he coached for two years at Scott City High in Kansas and then returned to his alma mater as an assistant to the famed Tex Winter.

During Guthridge's time on the Kansas State staff, the Wildcats won 93 games and lost only 43. Five years ago they advanced to the NCAA semifinals.

Dean Smith, who brought Guthridge to Carolina, rates him as one of the country's top young coaches. "I recognized long ago that Bill has an outstanding basketball mind," Smith says. "He's a winner and I'm certainly glad he's on our side."

Guthridge spent last summer coaching in the Puerto Rican Summer League. In fact, he was invited to coach the Puerto Rican team in the 1968 Olympic Games two years ago, but had to turn down the offer because of his work here.

While basketball is his game, Bill is also a keen follower of other sports. His football predictions at times border on the amazing and he is an old St. Louis Cardinal baseball fan.

Guthridge and his wife Leesie have two sons, Jamie, 10, and Stuart, seven.

Bill Guthridge

Assistant Basketball Coach

Terry Truax

Assistant Freshman Coach

The newest member of the Carolina basketball staff is 26-year-old Terry Truax who compiled a fabulous record the past three years as a coach at Washington's Dematha High.

As an assistant under Morgan Wootten at Dematha, Truax helped the varsity squad post a three-year record of 79 wins against only seven losses. Truax also coached the junior varsity team which (believe it or not) won 50 games and lost none.

At Carolina, Truax will assist Bill Guthridge in coaching the Tar Heel freshmen. He also will assist varsity Coach Dean Smith in scouting and recruiting.

A native of Hancock, Md., Truax attended the University of Maryland and played basketball there under Bud Milliken. He graduated in 1968.

In addition to his basketball job here, Truax is teaching in the physical education department. He also takes three courses as he works towards a masters degree.

Truax and his old coach, Wootten, recently wrote a book "Dematha High School Basketball Notebook," which is selling well.

Terry and his wife, Pamela, have a five-month old son, Scott Dean.

One of Truax's Dematha players, Ray Hite, now is a member of the Tar Heel freshman team. When Truax came here, Eddie Fogler, a star of last year's Carolina team, took over Truax's place on the Dematha staff.

John Lacey

Trainer

John Lacey, one of the most popular figures on the Carolina athletic scene, is in his 15th year as Tar Heel trainer.

He is a trainer of champions—and has the record to prove it.

Lacey has worked with four football bowl teams—clubs at Maryland which played twice in the Orange Bowl and once in the Sugar Bowl and the great 1963 Carolina team which flattened the Air Force Academy in the Gator Bowl.

John was introduced to Carolina sports by the late Jim Tatum who worked closely with Lacey at Maryland. While at Maryland, Lacey trained the football and lacrosse teams which swept national championships. At Carolina, he helped the 1957 basketball team win a similar national honor.

One of the biggest thrills in Lacey's long and distinguished career came in 1964 when he served as head trainer of the U. S. Olympic basketball team which captured the championship at Tokyo.

His background also includes a stint as trainer for three professional teams—the Chicago Rockets, New York Yankees and Baltimore Colts.

A native of Wallingford, Conn., Lacey studied at Yale and at the Tilton School in Tilton, N. H. He is married to the former Barbara Koch of Wallingford.

Dean Weber

Assistant Trainer

Soft-spoken Dean Weber is serving his third year on the Carolina athletic staff as an assistant trainer. He will work primarily with the Tar Heel freshmen in basketball.

Weber is a graduate of Bridgewater College at Bridgewater, Va., and was a teacher for one year in Rockingham County, Va. At Bridgewater, he majored in sociology and took courses which prepared him for a career as an athletic trainer. He served as trainer of the Bridgewater teams for two years while still a student.

Dean is married to the former Pat Follmer of Salem, Va., and they have a son, David Christopher, who is one and a half years old.

Outlook for 1970-71 Season:

A GREAT CHALLENGE

North Carolina, plagued by injuries and illness in 1969-70, looks ahead to the new basketball season with high hopes that it can uphold the great tradition of Tar Heel teams of the past.

Gone is Charlie Scott, a two-year All-America and one of the game's greatest players. Also graduated are two fine guards with a lot of savvy, Eddie Fogler and Jim Delany.

These losses would be enough to make most coaches bring out the crying towel. But not Dean Smith, the popular young coach who in nine years has built a dynasty at Carolina.

"Certainly this team and the coaching staff will be faced with a great challenge," Smith says. "We'll be an underdog, but I feel we can be a good, representative team and pull some surprises along the way."

There is no question the Tar Heels have good talent. But indicative of the type of talent UNC will be opposing in the ACC is the fact that one North Carolina newspaper recently picked the Tar Heels to finish seventh this season.

Smith, when hearing that prediction, said he would be extremely disappointed if his team finished that low. He said he feels the Tar Heels will finish higher than that provided they can escape injuries.

After sweeping an unprecedented three straight Atlantic Coast Conference and Eastern Regional championships, the Tar Heels compiled a record of 18 victories and nine defeats last season. Carolina scored many noteworthy victories, including two over ACC champion N. C. State, and played well enough to earn a bid to the National Invitation Tournament in New York.

The 1969-70 team pulled these tricks despite the fact that it was hit by a series of frustrating injuries and illnesses. At one time or another during the season, regulars Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain and Lee Dedmon and top reserve Steve Previs all were on the sick or injured list.

"Because of the injuries and illnesses," says Smith, "we never had a set lineup last season. We hope to start the new season with a set lineup with seven men listed as starters as we have done in the past."

The phenomenal Scott did a lion's share of the Tar Heel scoring last season. He compiled an average of 27.1 and wound up as the school's second leading scorer of all time. With Charlie graduated, the Tar Heels will strive for a more balanced attack.

"We need to make up for our graduation losses with teamwork," Smith says. "It cannot be done by an individual. We will strive for a balanced scoring attack and we hope to get it."

Returning are 6-5 Wuycik of Ambridge, Pa., who averaged 14.0; 6-5 Chamberlain of New York City, who played sparingly and averaged 11.5; and 6-10 Dedmon of Baltimore, Md., who averaged 13.8 and led the team in rebounds with 235.

These three players will be key men in the frontcourt but even they will have to battle to win positions.

Smith has promised that he will take a long look at all the personnel in early work. Others in contention in the frontcourt will be top reserves from last year, 6-7 senior Dave Chadwick of Orlando, Fla.; 6-9 junior Craig Corson from Contoocook, N. H.; 6-9 senior Don Eggleston of Charlotte, N. C.; and a rising sophomore, 6-8 Donn Johnston of Jamestown, N. Y.

Johnston, although bothered by a late season injury, averaged 17.7 for the Tar Heel freshman team last season. And he figures large in the Tar Heel plans.

"We don't feel that we will lose much in rebounding with Johnston in the cast," Smith says. "Scott was an outstanding rebounder, but we hope that Johnston can take up the slack."

Four veterans return in the backcourt. The 6-2 Previs of Bethel Park, Pa., started many games as a sophomore and will get a good shot at a starting position. Crafty Dale Gipple, 6-1 of Burlington, N. C.; 6-4 Kim Huband of Wilmington, N. C.; and 6-0 Richard Tuttle of London, Ky.; used sparingly last season, all figure in the battling.

Then there is George Karl, a nifty 6-1 performer from Pittsburgh, Pa., who must be considered as a question mark. Karl averaged 22.0 for the freshman team before he was sidelined with an injury. He underwent an operation for a slipped disc. Coaches are optimistic that he will be ready to go at full speed in the near future.

Johnston and Karl were the only two freshman scholarship players last year. So there are not many possibilities to replace the departed players, Scott, Delany and Fogler.

Carolina has compiled an amazing record of 99 victories against only 24 losses in the past four years. And this is a great plus as the Tar Heels start a new season. A winning tradition is hard to beat.

Walter Rabb

Walter Rabb, now in his 10th year as Assistant Athletic Director at the University of North Carolina, is at the hub of Tar Heel athletics.

The affable Rabb is a man of many talents. In addition to his position as assistant athletic director, he is one of the country's best known and most respected college baseball coaches.

Before the appointment of Homer Rice as Director of Athletics, Rabb occupied the post for eight months on an interim basis.

A native of Lenoir, N. C., Rabb graduated from North Carolina State University and attended graduate school at Carolina in 1940 and 1941. He joined the physical education staff here in 1942.

Rabb became assistant baseball coach under the late Bunn Hearn in 1949 and inherited the top job upon Hearn's death in 1957. Rabb actually directed most of the Tar Heels' baseball operations throughout the 1950s because of Hearn's failing health.

Since taking the reins as head man, Rabb has directed the Tar Heels to 358 wins and only 161 losses for a winning percentage of over 68 per cent. His teams have won four Atlantic Coast Conference championships since 1960.

Coach Rabb was a fine baseball player at North Carolina State and later played professionally. He was noted as a slick fielding shortstop and today is considered an astute judge of pitching talent.

A past president of the American Association of Baseball Coaches, Rabb also has been ACC Coach of the Year and in 1966 was named District Three NCAA Coach of the Year.

When he isn't busy in the Carolina athletic offices, Rabb usually can be found hunting or fishing. He's an expert at both sports.

He is married to the former Amy Warren of Snow Hill, N. C., and they have a son, Walter, and a daughter, Amy.

Chuck Erickson

As usual, one of the biggest boosters of the Tar Heel basketball team is Charles P. (Chuck) Erickson, one of Carolina's all-time great athletic figures.

Mr. Erickson, of course, is the former Director of Athletics at the University. He resigned in May, 1968 after 16 brilliant years at that post. He remains a key man at UNC in his role as Consultant and Advisor to the Department of Athletics.

Carolina enjoyed one of its greatest athletic eras under Mr. Erickson's leadership. Most of the athletic facilities here, which rank among the best in the nation, are the result of his planning. In fact, he personally raised the money from supporters and backers of the University for many of the building projects.

Shortly after he resigned as Athletic Director, friends of the University showed their appreciation for Mr. Erickson's tireless work with a testimonial dinner on the Carolina campus. He was presented with a new car and a check to pay off his home mortgage.

Mr. Erickson broke onto the Carolina scene over 45 years ago as a star halfback under Chuck Collins. He had come to Chapel Hill from Oak Park, Ill.

He received a Bachelor of Science degree in engineering and entered the world of business. But, in his stay at Carolina Mr. Erickson had grown to love Chapel Hill and returned here in the early 1930s.

In his UNC career, he has done just about everything. He has been a football coach, assistant graduate manager of athletics, fund raiser, scout and recruiter.

Mr. Erickson is married to the former Mildred Warnell. They have one daughter, Susan, and two grandchildren.

The University of North

Nestled in the rolling foothills of Piedmont North Carolina is Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina.

The town is unique in that it and the institution are often known as one. An old graduate will remark, "I attended Chapel Hill in 1920." Of course, he means the University.

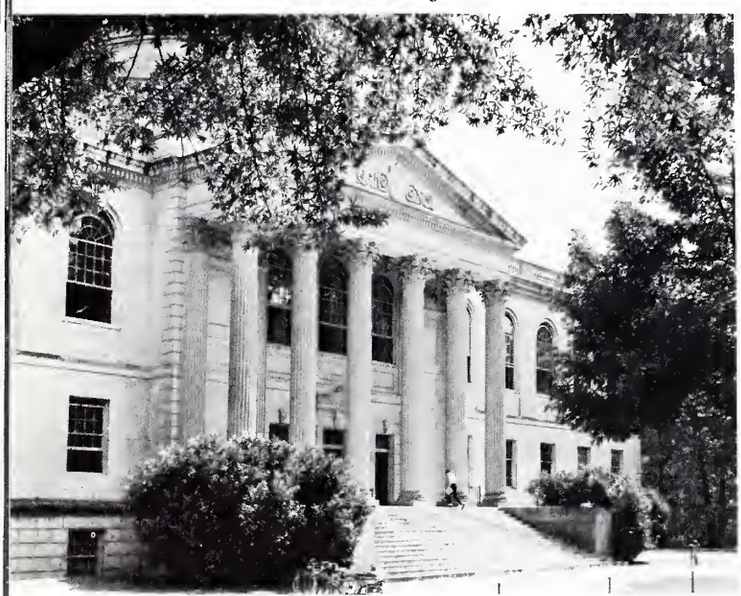
Chapel Hill is a sleepy town, yet a resourceful one. Although many of its inhabitants still refer to it as "The Village," the growth of the University has made it more than that.

It is a town which Time Magazine has called "one of the 20 most enjoyable places to live in the United States." It is a town without pretense, one in which the fellow wearing the $150 suit may run a small cafe, while his conversational partner, looking worn and tattered, may well be a successful novelist.

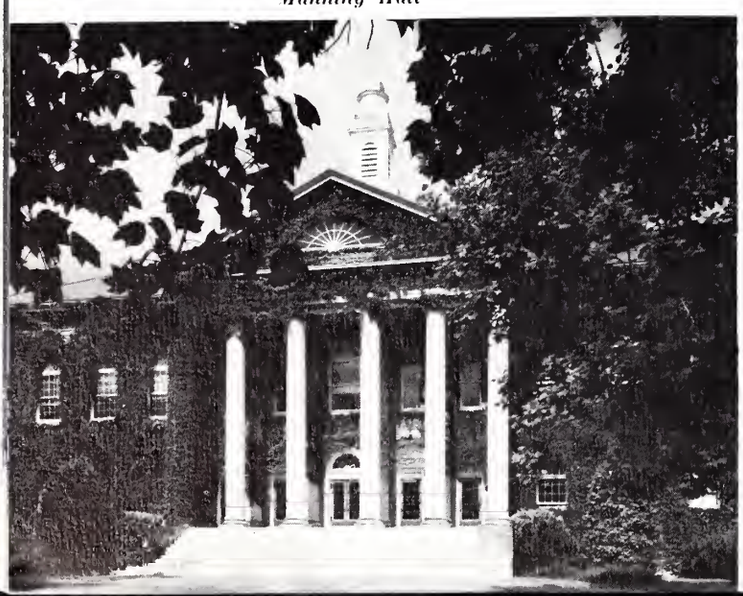
The late Jake Wade, in speaking of Chapel Hill, once wrote:

"This is a town touched by strange magic and one to which its peoples, many of them a curious breed, hold a rare and somewhat inexplicable attachment. Our town has no rivers, no mountains, no sea, but in the spring it is beautiful and in all seasons it is both wonderful and sad, romantic in the spirit of the youth it harbors in the educational process of the great state university, which is the town's principle industry."

The UNC Library



Manning Hall



The school itself is the oldest state university in the nation, first admitting students in 1795 while George Washington was President. It is now one of three southern colleges which rank at the top of universities in a comprehensive study of graduate schools conducted by the American Council on Education.

Carolina has recently been appraised as the "South's best university" and "one of America's great academic institutions."

The University currently has an enrollment of over 17,000. There are more than 1,200 faculty members, many of them professors of international stature.

There are 14 colleges and schools, including more than 70 departments and numerous other institutions, divisions and academic-affiliated organizations.

These include college of arts and sciences and a general college for students in their first two academic years, law school, medical school, business school, journalism school, school of social work, school of education, graduate school and school of library science.

An integral part of the University is the Division of Health Affairs, a six-fold medical-dentistry-public health complex which includes the North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

There are many famous alumni. James K. Polk, a graduate of the class of 1818, became the 11th President of the United States. Thirty of North Carolina's 49 governors have been UNC graduates.

Chapel Hill is recognized as a literary haven. Thomas Wolfe, one of America's greatest novelists, schooled here. Paul Green and LeGette Blythe are among the many other great writers who attended the University.

The Morehead Planetarium on campus helps train U. S. astronauts.

In a traditional program of student self-government, undergraduates have their own legislature, system of honor courts and student publications. These include a daily newspaper, "The Daily Tar Heel." There are also on-campus radio and television stations.

Chapel Hill is the center of an area abundant in concerts, art exhibits, lectures, plays and sports events. Many of these are held in Chapel Hill–at the Ackland Art Center, Morehead Art Galleries, Hill Music Hall, Carolina Playmakers Theatre, Forest Theatre, Graham Memorial, Memorial Hall, Gerrard Hall, Kenan Stadium and Carmichael Auditorium.

In athletics, the Tar Heel brand is well-known. There are now 14 varsity and several freshman and junior varsity sports at the University. Over the years Carolina has produced such national sports figures as Lennie Rosenbluth, National Basketball Player of the Year in 1957; Charlie 'Choo Choo' Justice, one of college football's all-time greats; Jim Beatty, the first American to break the four-minute mile barrier indoors; David Lemonds, National Baseball Player of the Year in 1968; Charlie Scott, one of basketball's all-time super-stars; and halfback Don McCauley, who holds every Atlantic Coast Conference rushing record.

These and many other factions of life, too numerous to mention, make Chapel Hill and the University one of the most attractive places in the country.

It truly deserves its title, "The Southern Part of Heaven."

CHAPEL HILL

A Town Touched by Strange Magic

Jake Wade

This is a town touched by strange magic and one to which its peoples, many of them a curious breed, hold a rare and somewhat inexplicable attachment. Our town has no rivers, no mountains, no sea, but in the spring it is beautiful and in all seasons it is both wonderful and sad, romantic in the spirit of the youth it harbors in the educational process of the great State University, which is the town's principal industry.

Chapel Hill, where bells wake you in the morning, regardless of whether you live in the Beta house, Cobb dormitory or on Laurel Hill Road, and where the bells keep ringing periodically the day long, with the chimes taking over in the majesty of twilight and on certain important occasions such as the big football games.

Not, really, a village any more, although its inhabitants, some living in the past, like to consider it as such . . . None of us will go so far as to say that it possesses the tranquility and serenity of the Twenties, when Thomas Wolfe, and Paul Green and LeGette Blythe and "Monk" McDonald and the Carmichaels found adventure, melancholy and beauty in their diverse pursuits on the old campus and the unexplored lands beyond . . . It is not as small, and not quite as nice, but almost, and there is a whole new world of knowledge to be discovered here with recources of mind and matter in abundance.

Chapel Hill, where the civic clubs do not sing, salute flags or wear badges, but unostentatiously and quietly engage in humanitarian projects as earnestly as their back-slapping counterparts of the cities . . . Where its only commercial radio station taboos hill-billy tunes and plays sweet music and deathless great arias.

In Chapel Hill that man in dungarees, coming out of the post office, is just as apt to be a best-selling novelist as the town's leading plumber or the divorced author of profound treatises on the science of nuptial compatibility . . . Where shoe shines, on the most modest leather, cost you twenty cents per copy, with the same treatment from five to ten cents cheaper in a much larger town across the way, but there you are not waited on by one of the town's most popular citizens who contributes philosophy, sound sense and remarkably accurate football prognostications as a dividend to the dab of mundane polish.

People in our town go to church, pray, are kind and considerate, both the students and the townspeople, as in all towns . . . But where some of the ministers never wear hats, do wear sweaters, and sometimes drive the more modest editions of those little foreign make sports cars, but their democracy in manners is no compromise with the dignity of their souls, for our town is blessed with able and Godly preachers.

Chapel Hillians, like the folks in your town or city, play poker and bridge but, strangely, little or no gin rummy, and they play golf and handball . . . Chapel Hill, where the tiniest tots are able swimmers, and old men play an exciting brand of tennis . . . Where there are circles and cliques, as in all towns, for the socials, round tables and spo.ts, but where those who travel together are frequently of oddly dissimilar tastes . . . A famous singer breaks bread often and attends games with a Kenan professor . . . A coach has tea regularly with a brilliant author . . . A University department head finds more wisdom, truth and beauty in the philosophy of a bistro keeper than in the ivory towers of his own intellectual level and prefers his company . . . But Chapel Hill is a town of neighbors who are bird watchers and who tend their flowers with loving care and talk over stone walls and drink their coffee or cocktails while talking oftenest about their children and grandchildren . . . That's Chapel Hill. God bless our town and its gentle way of life.

The late Jake Wade wrote this piece a good many years ago. Even today, it captures the spirit of this Town as well as anything we know. Mr. Wade was director of sports publicity at the University at the time of his death.

CHARLIE

This story was written last season before Charlie Scott's last Carolina home game. We repeat it here as a tribute to one of the Tar Heel's all-time greats.

By JACK WILLIAMS

The first time I met Charlie Scott he was wearing a crewcut, the kind you get free of charge in barber shops at Parris Island or Camp Lejeune. His sweater was baggy with a big prep school monogram on the front and his trousers were khacki.

Charlie's hairstyle and wardrobe have changed drastically in the past four years—and so has Charlie Scott.

His basketball, his social life, his approach to life all have become more refined. Even his speech has changed. Close friends used to have trouble understanding Charlie. Now he talks slower and more distinctly.

But one thing hasn't changed. Charlie Scott, basically, still is the same fine, young man who left Laurinburg Institute to become the first black scholarship athlete at the University of North Carolina.

There were those in our town who predicted trouble for Charlie Scott. Not in Chapel Hill because everyone knows this is a very liberal community. But what would happen when a Negro in Carolina blue traveled the Atlantic Coast Conference circuit to Clemson and Columbia and to points outside the conference even further south?

Scott did find some bitterness in those places. On Carolina's visit to the South Carolina campus three years ago, angry fans shouted, "To hell with you, Nigger! Go back to Harlem with your black buddies!"

Charlie ignored the cries of those racists. He, too, ignored the ugly threats he received by mail. He was too busy playing basketball and making the Dean's List.

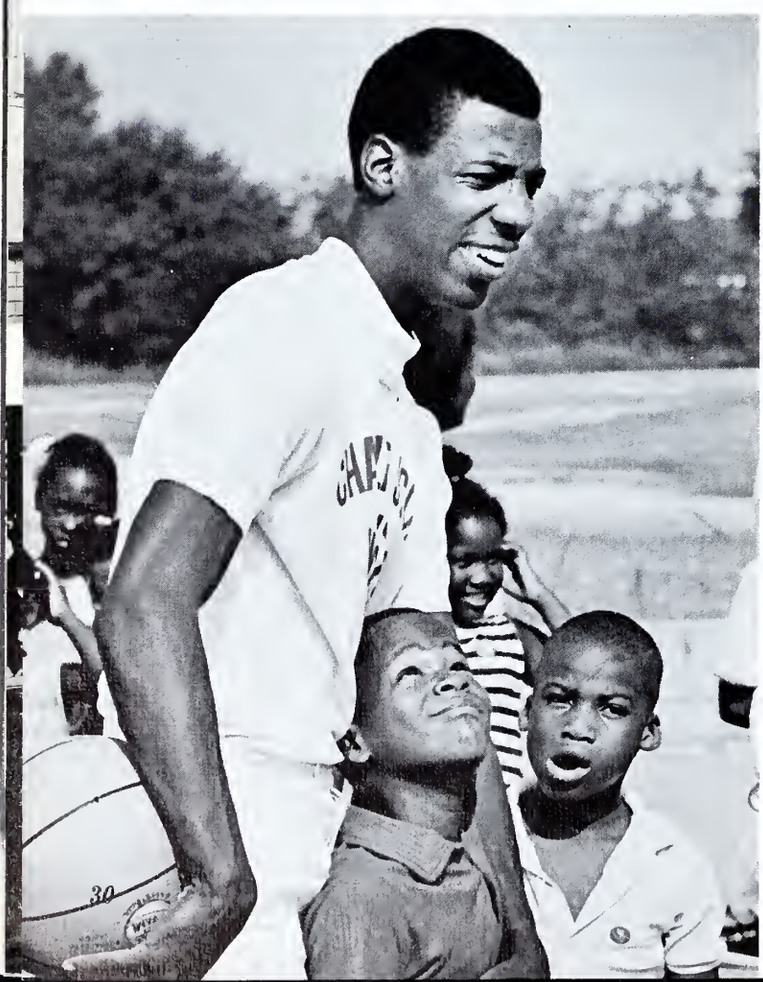
It would be safe to say that no athlete in Carolina history ever faced more pressure than Scott when he enrolled here. The fact that he is Black and was the first of his race to play here certainly put him on the spot. But there's more to it than that. Scott had a fabulous prep school record and he already was one of the most highly-touted players in the country the day he entered the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Scott played in the shadow of all-America Larry Miller as a sophomore, but still managed to make the all-Atlantic Coast Conference team. Following that season, he became a member of the United States Olympic team despite the fact that many members of his race boycotted the Games. Scott was a star player at Mexico City as the Americans swept the Olympic championship.

Then came a sensational junior year at Carolina. Charlie made four all-America teams. He capped that season with two of his greatest games. Against Duke in the finals of the ACC Tournament, Scott scored 40 points to lift the Tar Heels from behind to their third straight title. He hit 17 out of 23 shots that night and many claim it was the greatest overall performance of his career.

The next week at College Park, Md., Charlie ripped the nets for 32 points, including a game-winning basket at the buzzer, as Carolina toppled Davidson for the Eastern Regional crown.

With the graduation of such standout players as Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting and Dick Grubar, it figured that Carolina would have a tough time defending its championships this year. But the Tar Heels still have Mr. Scott and he has enjoyed a brilliant season. He has led the team to a fine 17-6 record and his very presence in the lineup makes the Tar Heels a threat for another title in the ACC Tournament next week.



Charlie Scott and friends

SCOTT

No athlete in Carolina history ever faced more pressure than Charlie Scott. His career at UNC was fabulous. He won the admiration and respect of sports fans everywhere.

All the headlines, however, haven't been good ones for Scott. He was blasted by the press at the end of last season when he criticized the Coach and Player of the Year selections in the ACC.

Charlie was miffed when his coach, Dean Smith, was not awarded the Coach of the Year prize after winning a third straight ACC and Eastern Regional championship. That award went to Frank McGuire of South Carolina. Prodded by a newsman, Scott also stated that he felt he should have been voted ACC Player of the Year instead of John Roche, the South Carolina guard who won the award.

In retrospect, it seems strange, indeed, that not one newsman supported his view. Surely there were writers who felt Scott was the best player in the league, but they didn't come to his defense when the press raked him over the coals. He was unanimously condemned for opening his mouth.

Say the shoe was on the other foot. Suppose Scott had been named Player of the Year and Roche had disagreed publicly. I believe some newsmen would have supported Roche in his view. But it was different with Charlie. It was almost as though they were saying, "A black man isn't supposed to speak his mind."

But that is history now. And so are most of the other events in the college career of Charlie Scott. He plays his final home game tonight in Carmichael Auditorium.

It will be a sad time for the thousands who have thrilled to his magic. Many regard Scott as the greatest player ever to wear Carolina blue. I must say that he can do more things than any player I have watched here.

Coach Smith pays him this tribute. "When the game is close near the end," Smith says, "Charles is like Arnold Palmer birdying Nos. 17 and 18."

Charlie Scott has written a magnificent story here. Years from now when a new generation of players are wearing Carolina blue, I will tell them that story. I'll tell them about all the games that Scott won, about all the fantastic shots he made and about his greatest victory of all—a triumph for black men everywhere.

Carolina's Greatest Players

In 60 years of basketball competition, the University of North Carolina has produced some of the greatest players in the game. Seven of them are riding high right now in professional ranks.

Billy Cunningham is the high-scoring star of the Philadelphia 76ers. Sizzling rookie Charlie Scott, Doug Moe and Larry Brown are leaders of the powerful Virginia Squires of the ABA. Larry Miller is a fine player with the Carolina Cougars, Bill Bunting fires 'em up for the New York Nets and Bobby Lewis plays for the Cleveland Cavaliers.

But these stars of recent Carolina teams are just a few of the many Carolina players who have produced great excitement for Tar Heel fans and have made headlines coast-to-coast.

Recently, an all-time Carolina football team was picked. Don't try to do that in basketball. There have been so many great stars that such a selection would cause a furor among Tar Heel fans.

Basketball first became a varsity sport at Carolina in 1911 and it took only 13 years for the Tar Heels to win a national championship. The 1924 team posted a perfect 24-0 record and was voted the best in the land.

That team was paced by the first of the truly great Carolina stars, Jack Cobb, a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. Two other leaders were Cartwright Carmichael and Monk McDonald. Oldtimers who saw those players perform claim that they could hold their own with all the super athletes of today.

While Carolina did not produce an all-American in the 1930s, it did come up with many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers and Tom Alexander made the all-Southern Conference teams during that decade.

One of the great legends in Carolina sports grew on the Carolina campus in the early 1940s—the story of George Glamack, the "Blind Bomber" of the Tar Heels. Glamack's eyesight was so bad that he couldn't see the basket. But he developed the uncanny sense of knowing where the basket was in relation to his position on the court. He perfected a hook shot which was devastating. He was an All-American in 1940 and 1941 and was the Helms Foundation Player of the Year in 1941. He's in the Hall of Fame.

All-American John (Hook) Dillon was the star of the 1946 team which lost to Oklahoma A and M in the national finals. He had an excellent supporting cast in Bones McKinney, Jim Jordan, Bob Paxton and Jim White.

Eleven years later, the Tar Heels again went to the national finals. This time they won, beating Kansas in a triple overtime thriller. Lennie Rosenbluth, a lean player with an amazing shooting eye, was the star of that team which toppled the fabled Wilt Chamberlain in the title game.

Rosenbluth was voted Player of the Year and he made everybody's all-America. Other starters on that team were Bob Cunningham, Tommy Kearns, Pete Brennan and Joe Quigg.

Rosenbluth today coaches high school basketball in Miami, Fla. He is remembered as one of the truly great players ever to perform in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Seven of Carolina's finest walked the campus and shot field goals in the early 1960s. Lee Shaffer, a blond bomber, was a sensation in 1960. He was later an all-star performer with the Syracuse Nationals in the NBA.

York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for Carolina in the early part of the decade. Larese was one of the all-time great free throw shooters. Moe, after leaving Carolina, played for a while in the Italian League and now is a star with the Virginia Squires.

Like Moe, Larry Brown is another former Tar Heel who is a super player in the ABA. He is a teammate of Moe and Charlie Scott on the Virginia Squires' club and they form a terrific trio.

Brown is the playmaker deluxe. He coached for a time under Dean Smith at Carolina. Larry has a keen mind for the game and is regarded as one of the slickest ball-handlers ever to perform here.

The Kangaroo Kid, Billy Cunningham, is still another UNC star who became a professional great. Cunningham made the all-ACC teams three straight years in 1963, 1964 and 1965 and was an All-American in his senior year. He now is regarded as one of the NBA's leading players at Philadelphia.

Next on the Carolina scene came Bob Lewis, a skinny kid who could shoot the eyes out of the basket. In fact, he still holds the Carolina school scoring record with 49 points against Florida State in 1966. Lewis recently was sent to Cleveland by the San Francisco Warriors of the NBA.

Larry Miller, a first-team all-America his senior year at Carolina, played on two teams which went to the NCAA round of four. In 1968, he was on the Tar Heel team which lost to UCLA in the national finals.

Larry was a highly-honored player here. He twice was named the Atlantic Coast Conference Athlete of the Year. Miller now is a valuable member of the Carolina Cougars.

Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Rusty Clark were starters on three straight Carolina teams which went to the NCAA round of four. Bunting had a brilliant senior year and now is with the New York Nets. Grubar may be one of the most popular athletes ever to wear Carolina blue. And Clark was a dynamic figure, one of the best big men (6-10) in Tar Heel history.

Then there was Charlie Scott—who may just be the greatest of them all. Charlie made a lot of all-America teams and last year was chosen as the Atlantic Coast Conference Athlete of the Year.

He has broken in with a bang on the Virginia Squires' team in the ABA and already is regarded as a leading candidate for Rookie of the Year in that league.

The list of Tar Heel greats grows longer. The current roster may produce another player who will rank among the all-time stars. Carolina has a fabulous tradition in the game and the men who play here do great honor to the school and to themselves.

Letters to the Coach

Mr. Dean Smith
Head Basketball Coach
University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Dear Coach Smith:

As I look back at it now, I realize that the best decision I ever made in my life was the decision to enroll at Carolina. I am truly proud to say that I am a Tar Heel.

I want to thank you for all you did for me in my four years at Carolina. You were much more than just a coach to me. You were my friend and counselor, and of course, you have continued to help me in so many ways since I graduated from Carolina.

I was fortunate to play on great teams at Carolina. But the honors we won are not what really matters. It was a privilege just to associate with the fine coaches and players at the University—all of them real "Carolina Gentlemen."

As I look back at my four years there, I think one word describes Carolina basketball and that word is "big-time." We had big-time facilities, we played before big-time crowds and our entire approach to the sport was big-time in the finest sense of the word.

Thank you again for making my career at Carolina possible. And please convey my appreciation to other members of the athletic staff.

Best wishes,
Dick Grubar

Mr. Dean Smith
Carmichael Auditorium
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Dear Coach Smith:

Now that my four years at Carolina are over, I want to thank you for all that you did for me. In addition to learning a lot of basketball from you, I also learned a lot about life.

I'm proud that I had the opportunity to play basketball at Carolina. It is a great school. If I'm ever lucky enough to have a son, I'll send him to Carolina.

Now I'm ready to turn my attention to a pro career. It's tough being a rookie again, but I am hopeful that I will have a good season.

I will be following the progress of the Tar Heels. Good luck to you and the team.

Sincerely,
Charlie Scott

Outlook

The Bucs will be strong at guards, possess average height but scoring potential will be good. Basically a veteran club height will be a decided handicap. Success will depend on how well Phil Williford and Jerry McNabb come through. Guards will be good with Gordon Gifford (12.8) and Tommy Martin (5.5) having inside track. Sophomore Denton Willard could easily break into starting lineup. Tim Fleming will have to carry load at pivot, not big man but can jump well. John Rice at Forward should be good, has great potential.

Outlook

The addition of five transfer students should give William and Mary one of its strongest teams in recent years this season. The Indians lost star forward Bob Sherwood (18.7) to graduation, but return two fine shooters in Tom Jasper and Steve Dodge off a team which averaged 78.4 points per game last year, highest in William and Mary history. Florida State transfer Jeff Trammel, a 6-7 forward, may win a starting job along with junior college newcomer David Stovall, a 6-8 center. Big trouble spot for the Indians may be at guard where both starters have graduated. Overall, William and Mary appears to have a good shooting team and could be a contender for the Southern Conference championship.

Creighton is looking forward to new success in the 1970-71 basketball season as Coach Eddie Sutton enters his second year with five leading scorers returning. Cyril Baptiste, 6-9 junior center, who was a regular with the 1970 U. S. Olympic Development team, is receiving All-America notice. Baptiste led the Bluejays last season with 18.9 points and 11.7 rebounds per game. Other top returning scorers are Mike Caruso (13.7), Dennis Bresnahan (12.8), Joe Bergman (10.5), and John Taylor, 7.3. Bergman was drafted by both professional leagues after last season but has one semester's eligibility this year. Bresnahan was a third team academic all-American.

Outlook

Despite the loss of two starters off last year's 18-10 team which went to the N. I. T., Utah should have another strong team this season. The Redskins will be led by All-America candidate Mike Newlin, a 6-4 guard who has twice been selected the Western Athletic Conference Player of the Year. Big problem facing Coach Jack Gardner is replacing graduated forward Walt Hawkins, an excellent rebounder and defensive player. Sophomore John Dearman has the inside tract at that spot and should team with returnees Ken Garder and Jim Mahler on the front line. Joining Newlin in the backcourt will be soph Eddie Trail, a good ball-handler and shooter. Newlin shouldered much of the Utah scoring burden last year and averaged 26.0 per game. But, Coach Gardner is hoping for a more balanced attack this year. The Redskins are the pre-season favorites in the WAC.

The Nittany Lions' biggest weakness last year was a lack of rebounding, but Bach is hoping the addition of sophomore center Paul Neunayer will remedy that. Bach hopes to run more this season than his teams have in the past. Top returning scorer is Bob Fittin (14.5) who has been switched from center to forward. Sophomore Bill Kunze is battling two-year regular Willie Bryant for the other starting forward spot. Top man in the backcourt is Ron Kodish, who should be one of the team's leading scorers.

Another good sophomore will be guard Mark Sibley, who's 6-1. Six-eight junior Barry Hentz is the only pivot man with size. Other returning starters are forwards Barry Moran, and Don Crandell. The Wildcats count on speed to compensate for lack of height.

John Sutter

Outlook

All-American John Sutter and jumping jack Harold Sylvester, a pair of two year starters, head a Tulane cage aggregation looking for a big improvement over last winter's 5-18 performance.

Sutter, a 6-8 forward with great outside shooting ability, led Tulane in just about everything last season, including points scored (24.3) and rebounds (11.8) per contest and was named to The Helms Foundation All-American Basketball squad.

Sylvester, one of the finest rebounders in Tulane cage history, was felled by mononucleosis in October, 1969, but recovered quickly to do an excellent job in the pivot with 13.5 points and 9.9 rebounds per contest.

The only other three lettermen returning are guards Mike Henry, Mike Billingsley and Dave Alspaugh, so the key to the 1970-71 season may be the development of talented newcomers from last year's 16-4 Freshman squad.

Locke, who was head man at Miami University of Oxford, Ohio, will have to depend heavily on seven members from last year's Clemson freshman club, which finished the year with a 9-7 mark. Two starters return for the Tigers, guard Dave Thomas and forward Dickie Foster. Thomas, who will probably be a starter in the backcourt this season, averaged 11.6 points a game last year, while the 6-6 Foster averaged 8.0 points and 7.4 rebounds per game. Guard John Coakley (4.2), forwards Paul Holzshu and Jack Ross, return with center Pete Weddell. Holzshu averaged 2.2 points a game, Ross 1.8, Weddell 1.4.

Outlook

Despite the loss of five lettermen, four of whom were starters at one time during their varsity careers, Coach Jack McCloskey feels that the 1970-71 Wake Forest Deacons could be improved over a year ago when a 14-13 record was compiled. Gone from the 1969-70 team are guard Tom Lynch and forwards Dickie Walker, Norwood Todmann, Larry Habegger and Dan Ackley. But the Deacons have five lettermen returning plus several outstanding prospects moving up from last year's freshman team. The top returnee is Charlie Davis, the Deacon's 6-1 All-America candidate who will be ending a brilliant career. Last season, Davis averaged 25.5 points during 26 games and has now scored 1,280 points during his career for a 24.2 average. But there are several other pluses for the Deacons. Gil McGregor, a 6-7 center, will return for his third season. Last year, McGregor averaged 10.6 rebounds in addition to ranking third on the team in scoring with a 12.5 average.

Rich Yunkus

Outlook

The greatest center in Georgia Tech history returns to lead the Yellow Jackets this year. Rich Yunkus, a 6-9½ senior All-American, formed the nucleus of last year's Tech squad which appeared in the NIT. A deadly shooter and excellent rebounder, Yunkus finished sixth in the nation among scorers last season with a 30.1 average, hitting 58.8 per cent of his shots. Jim Thorne, a 6-2 guard adept at getting the ball to Yunkus, also returns from last year's squad. Thorne averaged 10.3 points per game in addition to setting the school record for assists. Three lettermen will probably fill the remaining starting positions. Tommy Wilson, a 6-7 forward, John Hoggle, a 6-0 guard, and 6-4 forward Howard Thompson give the Yellow Jackets key experience. Sophomore Peanut Murphy, who averaged over 15 points per game for last year's freshman, will see considerable action, either as a forward or guard.

Outlook

Florida State lost five lettermen from last season's best-ever team but that doesn't mean Coach Hugh Durham's Seminoles won't be tough this season. Gone through graduation are Dave Cowens and Williams, the Boston Celtics' first and third round draft picks. Speed and defense will be the Seminoles' bywords this season. Versatile Skip Young is one of the finest guards in the country. Ron Harris, Vernell Ellzy and Rowland Garrett are seasoned forwards. Four upcoming sophomores figure to help. They are forward Ron King (35.7), center Reggie Royals (23.3 points and 22.8 rebounds), forward Larry Gay (21.9 pts.) and guard-playmaker Otto Petty.

Press, Radio & TV Information

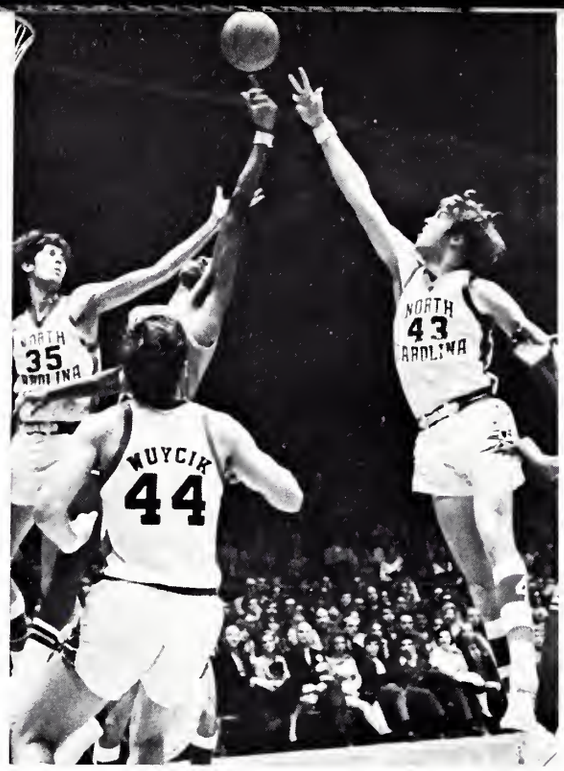
Carolina basketball is big—and so is the press coverage of the Tar Heels. Newspaper, radio and television reporters across the state keep daily tabs on the progress of Carolina teams.

The Carmichael Auditorium press box always is filled to capacity for every home game. The sports writers of the big North Carolina dailies get choice seats and always are welcome in Chapel Hill.

More than 40 radio stations in three states will carry the Tar Heel Basketball Network during the coming season. Bill Currie, The Mouth of the South, will handle the play-by-play. He is the sports director of WSOC-TV in Charlotte.

Currie also will serve as M.C. throughout the season on the Dean Smith Show which will be televised each week on stations covering most of the state of North Carolina.

Working press credentials for Carolina home games can be secured by contacting Jack Williams, Sports Information Director. Requests are screened with care to insure a working press box. Children, wives and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of The Basketball Writers Association of America.



Lee Dedmon (35), Dennis Wuycik (44) and Craig Corson (43) will be returning veterans on the Tar Heel team this year.

CARMICHAEL

Home of The Tar Heels

The "Blue Heaven" of University of North Carolina basketball! That's William D. Carmichael, Jr. Auditorium.

This building, rated one of the most beautiful basketball arenas in the south, is located in the center of the University campus. It seats 8,800.

Carmichael Auditorium was opened in the fall of 1965 and the first basketball game was played there against William and Mary in December of that year. The Tar Heels won that game, 82-68, and went on to post 16-11 record that season.

Carolina set the Carmichael scoring record in the second game played in the arena when it smashed the University of Richmond by the lop-sided score of 127-76.

All the permanent seats in Carmichael Auditorium are painted "Carolina Blue." The interior of the building is painted in several shades of blue with the lightest at the floor and the darkest near the top.

Most of the Carolina athletic offices are located in Carmichael. Athletic Director Homer Rice has his office there. The building also houses Coach Dean Smith's basketball offices and a basketball film room.

The building adjoins Woollen Gym, longtime site of varsity basketball competition and now the center of physical education and intramural activities.

The Auditorium is named for the late William D. Carmichael, Jr., one of the most popular gentlemen ever to serve on the University campus. He gave up a lucrative Wall Street business to become associated with Carolina.

In Chapel Hill, Carmichael was comptroller and later the vice president of the Consolidated University. He served for a time as acting president of the Consolidated University. He died in 1961.

THE TAR BABIES

1970-71 Prospectus

Carolina freshman Coach Bill Guthridge sets two goals for his Tar Baby cagers. "Our major objective is to prepare the players for the varsity," he observes. "Our second goal is to win as many games as possible."

The 1970-71 Tar Babies will depend on an enthusiastic attitude, strong dedication to the game and a tight defense in an effort to achieve a successful season.

But lack of depth and a rugged schedule will be major obstacles to UNC's hopes for a winning record.

Carolina has four scholarship players on the roster this year. Bobby Jones, a 6-9 all-star center from Charlotte, and 6-6 John O'Donnell from New York, N. Y. will be counted on for frontcourt strength.

Ray Hite, a 5-11 guard who hails from Hyattsville, Md., and Darrell Elston, a 6-3 performer from Tipton, Ind., will operate in the backcourt.

With three games each against Duke and N. C. State, the Tar Babies will have their work cut out for them. But the Carolina winning tradition in basketball and the proper attitude may make the Tar Babies an exciting and surprising team to watch.

UNC Educational Foundation

With the Carolina athletic program at its highest peak in many years, the University's Educational Foundation appears headed for another boom year.

Ernie Williamson, executive secretary of the Educational Foundation, reports overwhelming response by Tar Heels everywhere in recent months.

"Interest in the Foundation definitely is at an all-time high," he says, "and there are good reasons for this. Our rebuilding program in football is now paying dividends, basketball prospects are bright as usual and all of our other sports teams are making rapid strides."

Williamson always has contended that a donation to the Educational Foundation is not specifically a donation to athletics. He says that the high caliber young man who is awarded an athletic scholarship not only pays dividends on the athletic field, but also is a great asset to the academic standards of the University.

Williamson feels that the overall bonus is in helping a worthy young man obtain a college education. Athletics, while important, come second.

Any donation to the Educational Foundation is welcome. The small donor of today is the Big Ram of tomorrow. Membership in the Rams Club is restricted to those who contribute $100 or more.

Foundation members receive priority on seat locations for football and basketball games. There are other benefits, too, for members. A special room on the south wing of Kenan Field House serves as a meeting place for Rams and members of their families. This area is open two hours before the big football games and provides a lounge, picnic facilities and restrooms for those who come early. In the off-season, other functions related to the Foundation are held there.

"A Foundation membership is a badge of prestige and loyalty to the University," Williamson points out. "Many of our finest members, however, did not necessarily attend the University of North Carolina. They just heard about our program and felt it was worthy."

It is important to point out that all donations to the Foundation are tax deductible.

Current Educational Foundation Officers are President Jack May of Burlington, N. C. and Secretary Charlie Shaffer of Chapel Hill.

ORIGIN AND INCORPORATION

Three loyal and athletic-minded University of North Carolina alumni met in the office of Secretary of State Thad Eure at Raleigh in December of 1938 and organized the Educational Foundation, Inc.

They were John Umstead Jr. of Chapel Hill, Max Abernathy of Raleigh and Benton Stacy of Reidsville.

A charter was drawn with these three men as the incorporators and submitted to the late O. Max Gardner, who had his law firm clear it with the Internal Revenue Department as a charitable organization. The charter was issued December 7, 1938.

PURPOSE

The purpose of the Educational Foundation, Inc., is to raise funds for providing scholarships or grants-in-aid at the University to worthy and qualified high school students with athletic ability.

The Educational Foundation, Inc., operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all of the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

It has the blessing and good will of all the University administration and, in its unique field, occupies a status similar to that of the Business Foundation, The Medical Foundation, and other money-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

The full amount of all donations of Foundation members is used for scholarships and grants. The organization has no administrative expense.

Ernie Williamson

One of the most popular members of the Carolina athletic family is Big Ernie Williamson, the executive secretary of the Educational Foundation.

Ernie was a Carolina graduate with A.B. and M.A. degrees. The native of Crewe, Va., played one season of football here under Carl Snavely and was regarded as an outstanding tackle.

He was lured away to play professional football and performed with Los Angeles and Washington before being sidelined for good with a knee injury.

He returned to Chapel Hill to finish work on his degrees, then went to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., as an assistant football coach for two years and head football coach for three seasons.

He returned to Carolina to accept his present position in 1957. Until recently, he also served as recruiter for the Carolina football program and still helps out in that department when time will permit.

Williamson is an expert fisherman and hunter.

He is married to the former Elva Smith of Lawrenceville, Va., and they have a son, Wayne, 22, and a daughter, Carole, 14.
